THE BEE HIVE Miss Emiline Bee Hive!

The Queen of the young people, sent to us direct by old Santa Claus, will make her first appearance in the center window on Tuesday night. Miss Emiline brings with her the grandest collection of Xmas presents ever shown in Maysville. We received a letter from her on Saturday and she writes as follows:

Mrs. Bros., Maysville, Ky.—My Dear Friends: I leave here Saturday at 3:15 with old Santa, and if there are not bad will see you on Tuesday afternoon. Santa Claus told me he was in Maysville in October and went through every store in your town, and after looking through all of them he decided to send me to your store; and oh! I am so happy, because old Santa told me that you have the nicest store in town, and the nicest clerks, and that more little children trade at your store than all the others together. Be sure and tell all the children to come and see me; and tell them I am bringing the prettiest things along with me, and so very many. Tell the children that I am bringing things for their papas, mammas and their brothers and sisters. I think old Santa Claus is bringing too many things for your town; it seems to me he is sending enough Xmas presents for a city like New York. I must stop now. Hoping to find you all well, I am, with lots of love, your little friend,

We hope our young friends will give Miss Emiline a great reception.

Mr. OLIVER, Ky., December 3.
Editor Mayville Ledger: Congressman Charles K. Wheeler spoke to about half of the afternoon at the Courthouse in Mt. Olive County Court Day. There was a large crowd in town, and it must have been somewhat discouraging to the distinguished gentleman to see him crowded on so many empty benches.
Curiously, at least, to see the gifted orator who was told by the Democratic Campaign Committee to "go away and sit all day" after his election of abuse and fifth at Mayville at the beginning of the late campaign, should have filled Robertson county's Temple auditorium to overflowing.
Mr. Wheeler made a good speech, entirely free of abuse and practically devoid of democracy or of any political opinions whatever. In fact, the greater part of his speech would have made a splendid prelude to a Republican orator.
He seems to have been provoked by the severe criticisms of his Mayville debate.
A better hearing, that he did not have a better hearing, and it is in a measure humiliating to have seen him so crowded that during a continued flow of genuine eloquence for nearly two hours the distinguished speaker was interrupted by applause and cries upon his telling an anecdote. I was at a loss to account for this apparent lack of appreciation until after the speech was over.
When, upon asking a prominent Democrat how he liked the speech, he said: "I didn't like it. I couldn't tell which side he was on. He didn't abuse you Republicans enough for a Republican democrat." But when I informed him that in his immediate neighborhood where he was known the speaker was considered as two or more cheerleaders in the God-blessed Democracy, he said:
"Well, he'll do, then."
The speech of the eloquent Congressman was, perhaps, more able, sagacious, and democratic than any I have ever seen than from what he actually said. In fact, the only true Democratic ring to his whole speech was in his eloquent objection to all Republicanism, and Republican legislation and his failure to suggest anything better. It was really in hopes Mr. Wheeler would suggest some Democratic remedy for the hard times we are now all enjoying.
His reference to the struggle of the three great world forces, individual liberty, freedom of conscience and commercial supremacy, was very timely and superlatively of the Old World, and his adoption and development by the fathers of our Republic, was truly great and stamped the speaker as a classical scholar well versed in ancient history, but when he passionately rounded out this eloquent passage in his address by saying that "the grand old Democratic party has always stood for these immortal principles," he somewhat shocked his audience and led them to think he was either trying to pass a bad joke on them or was sadly deficient in modern history. However, the speaker here cleared his throat and wiped his forehead, thus affording his hearers ample time for applause, but "my applaud" greeted the speaker's ears. It is evident that Mr. Wheeler did not know his audience, and that he was democratic. If anything, are concen-tions and not twofold, so to speak, and when they remembered that the dear old Jack was not a Republican, but right and the voter leaves nothing to chances," and can elect officers with or without votes, as the case may require, they were not so much constant, at least, to applaud any reckless assertion as was made by the honorable gentleman.
His reference to Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, if not entirely new or appropriate in a modern Democratic speech, was, fine, but when he selected a few of the garments from the per-wardrobe of these "fathers of democracy" and tried them on the skeleton forms of their step-children he found that they would not fit at all. Yet he still the speaker displayed in borrowing the livery of Jefferson to serve modern Democracy in would have done credit to a Bryan or a Hill.
With burning eloquence he referred to the long and honorable record of the Democratic party in its battle for personal liberty and civil rights, outlining, however, for the sake of brevity, any reference to its hard struggle in securing the passage of the Goebel, Neillitt and other laws in several Southern states to protect the ballot-box from Republican voters.
His eloquence and pathos in describing the grand old Democratic party as the guardian and protector of the Constitution was truly touching, and it caused several of General Lee's and General John Morgan's old veterans to shed tears.
Amid these fine sentiments, however, he couldn't raise a yell, the speaker plundered the Democratic party as standing guard at the door of the grand old Temple of Liberty and protecting it against all enemies from the organization of our Government down to the gifted orator hesitated a moment, and with consummate tact and wisdom passed over that somewhat historic period from 1861 to 1865, or thereabouts, when quite a number of the old guard were otherwise engaged, and discreetly, though abruptly, launched off into a discussion of Trusts and of our new possessions. Here, again, he disappointed his audience by saying that there was no later prevent a combination of capital in trade or manufacture, and by suggesting no better safeguard against the growing evil of the gigantic Trusts than by limiting it to the United States Senate.
But it was, perhaps, in his glowing description of our treatment of the Philippines that he revealed the true spirit of the four centuries for self-government and in his pathetic reference to the Sultan of Sulu, with his thirty-two wives and a salary of only $5,000 per annum, which was which to support them, that he displayed more oratory and awakened more genuine sympathy than in any other part of his speech; but he quoted the beautiful picture by immediately saying that the inhabitants of our new possessions are savage, and that it was not for them that he was speaking, and that some of our Democratic friends expect "great applause," and the eloquent gentleman again, very appropriately, took a long breath, while his kinsman, the Hon. E. Wheeler, former Democratic Senator from this District, winked at Colonel Osborne to start the applause, but the Colonel never rushes blindly into anything, and not being thoroughly satisfied as to which of the Democratic principles the speaker referred, whether the anti-secession of states, or that the war is a failure, whether Free-trade or Tariff for Revenue only, for Sound Money or Greenbacks, Gold Standard or Free Silver, Expansion or anti-Expansion, Heavens forbid, or "Christianity or anti-Christianity, in short, not being satisfied whether the speaker meant that it would take one or all of these Democratic principles to save the country from destruction, he would not start the cheering.
Upon the whole Congressman Wheeler made much the best Democratic speech that has been made in this town for many a day, and judging from his careful, conservative utterances and from his own account of his stewardship as a member of Congress, if elected to the United States Senate, if he can't do any good, he won't do much harm.

GOLICKY PRETTY TEETHING BABES NEED LAXAKOLA
The Great Tonic Laxative
WATCH the children carefully. Their health, perhaps their lives, depend on keeping their bowels regular. Many parents make a mistake by giving their little children the old-fashioned, violent purgatives which are racking and griping, and are therefore not only unpleasant, but dangerous.
Laxakola does not grip nor irritate. It is a pure, gentle and painless liquid laxative. It is not only a sure laxative, but it contains valuable tonic properties which not only open the bowels, but tone up the entire system and purify the blood. A few drops can be given with safety to very young babies, and will often relieve colic by expelling the wind and gas that cause it. Great relief is experienced when administered to young children suffering from diarrhoea, accompanied with white or green evacuations, as LAXAKOLA neutralizes the acidity of the bowels and carries out the cause of the fermentation. It will aid digestion, relieve restlessness, assist nature, and induce sleep. For constipation, simple fever, coated tongue, or any infantile troubles arising from a disordered condition of the stomach it is invaluable. At druggists, etc., and, if sent for free sample to LAXAKOLA CO., 121 Nassau Street, New York, or 300 Duane Street, Philadelphia. that its only refuge of safety was in the Democratic party, and as long as Democratic principles prevailed the Republic would live.
At this grand climax, most any Democratic speaker, less egotistical than Mr. Wheeler, could reasonably expect "great applause," and the eloquent gentleman again, very appropriately, took a long breath, while his kinsman, the Hon. E. Wheeler, former Democratic Senator from this District, winked at Colonel Osborne to start the applause, but the Colonel never rushes blindly into anything, and not being thoroughly satisfied as to which of the Democratic principles the speaker referred, whether the anti-secession of states, or that the war is a failure, whether Free-trade or Tariff for Revenue only, for Sound Money or Greenbacks, Gold Standard or Free Silver, Expansion or anti-Expansion, Heavens forbid, or "Christianity or anti-Christianity, in short, not being satisfied whether the speaker meant that it would take one or all of these Democratic principles to save the country from destruction, he would not start the cheering.

The London Daily Papers Discuss the First State Paper of President Roosevelt.
CONSERVATIVE AND BUSINESS LIKE.
Regarded as One of the Most Characteristic and Remarkable Messages Ever Sent to Congress.
The Papers Are Skeptical of Any Great Outcome of the President's Efforts in the Direction of Reforms.
London, Dec. 4.—The London daily papers Wednesday morning took at President Roosevelt's message from the point of view of its literary power and the wealth of weighty matters discussed, regarded it as a far more characteristic and remarkable message ever sent to congress. At the same time the papers recognize its conservative and business like moderation of reforms.
On the whole, however, the newspaper men are skeptical of any great outcome of the president's efforts in the direction of reform of the trusts, anti-anarchism or reciprocity, the idea being that the senate will effectually stop the president's efforts in the existing system.
Most of the papers remark upon the tone of exaltation adopted by the president, and regard it as a far cry from the usual caution, but they do not show the slightest disposition to cavil therat.
"The American Danger."
The Daily Telegraph says it would have been an inconceivably disastrous blunder to have opposed America's wishes in this matter, and thus delay or to hinder a still greater danger than already contemplated, which, it is safe to predict will 20 years hence make the United States the second step in the direction of free trade.
The Telegraph thinks that President Roosevelt's policy is calculated rather to diminish, than to increase, Europe's exaggerated dread of "The American danger."
The Daily Chronicle hopes that although President Roosevelt shows signs of leniency, or protectionist capabilities, his proposed policy is a step in the direction of free trade.
Regarding President Roosevelt's policy of protection of Monroism, the Chronicle says:
"Whether the European nations are likely to respect this American protectionist policy, or whether the European nations are likely to be the being snapped up in a headlong race, must depend ultimately upon the attitude of the United States to enforce their prohibition."
The Exclusion Policy.
The Times says it is distinguished by a clearness, firmness and reserved strength which do not require the early days of rhetorical pyrotechnics or popular platitudes.
"We certainly have no fault to find with the British government, or indeed, with its foreign policy generally. It is not easy to see how the exclusion policy can be enforced. The United States would today be poorer in many of the finest elements of its national character if an entrance fee had been demanded of every settler in the early days of colonization."
The Times thinks that reciprocity and the trusts will provide thorny problems, and that the president's course in dealing with the latter will disappoint some of the passionate social reformers.
THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.
It caused a Mild Thrill in Germany, and the Market Generally Was Slightly Stimulated.
Berlin, Dec. 4.—The message of President Roosevelt caused a mild thrill in Germany. On the bourse, where it was eagerly awaited, the message was received with uncommon interest and the market generally was slightly stimulated upon the posting of a bulletin containing President Roosevelt's utterances about trusts. The shares of the steamship companies fell one or two points on account of the immigration inspection paragraph and the proposed development of the merchant marine.

Digests what you Eat
Dyspepsia Cure

Some people wonder why peptic preparations don't help their dyspepsia. They probably suffer because they can't digest foods that peptic does not affect. The reason is, peptic digests only nitrogenous foods, while different substances are required to digest the variety of other foods necessary for proper nourishment. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure contains all the digestants, and is capable of completely digesting every kind of food. That is why it digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the variety you want; and that is why it cures indigestion after everything else has failed. As it is the only preparation of the kind known, the demand for it has become enormous. Its use affords instant relief from all forms of stomach trouble.

It can't help but do you good Prepared by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. The bottle contains 24 times the 50c. size.
When you suffer from biliousness or constipation, use the famous little liver pills known as DeWitt's Little EARLY RISERS. They never grip.
